STEPHEN BUORO

To the Messiah

Eyes
the epicentre sceptre of nakedness
the ultimate Messiah to the mantra of Earth
the insidious herald, the sole highway to the Promised Land

So naked, can you not see the unquenchable cascades of blood on the squeamish streets?

So dazzling, are you blind at the cat and dog friendliness of the mechanism of man?

So alert, have you been insensate, a repeller of the rebelling rivers of eyes?

Are you lopsided, masked or diseased?
Your silence
dawning the eternal Adam loss of man, your absence
making men see a Satan between themselves, your abstinence
making the world the friendliest foe of itself ...

Oh you the inflammable compasses of Eyes?
